SEPERATION

Perce en arc; for this style of roulette the French term is used, as there is no equivalent in English. It consists of a row of small semi-circular cuts between which only a small fraction of paper is left. When two stamps perforated perce en arc are seperated, one stamp will show an edge with rounded profections, and the other rounded depressions.

Saw-tooth perforation; French, perce en scie: this style of perforation or roulette resembles saw teeth, the cuts being small triangles instead of semi-circles.

Serpentine perforation; French, perce en serpentine. In this style the cuts are wavy or serpentine lines.

Lozenge perforation; French, perce en losanges: in this style the cuts are diamond shape and partly cut and partly punched.

Perforation: this method of seperating stamps is almost entirely used to-day. This differs

The total value of the stamps on show recently at Caxton Hall, London, an expert put at $400,000. "The fascination of stamp collecting" he said, "lies in the rare finds which are continually made, and the curious 'points' which sometimes make a stamp of the face value of a few pence worth hundreds of pounds. For instance, the 2d. blue Mauritius stamp which the Prince of Wales bought at a public auction for $7,250.

NEW LENSLESS CAMERA.

grapher of Grand Rapids, Mich., who has won many prizes by his photographs, has just perfected a lensless or "needle hole" camera for taking panoramic views.

With his cheap outfit, costing less than $1, Stoel has been able to accomplish results which he never has been able to accomplish with his expensive outfits.

Stoel's outfit consists simply of a piece of thin brass, perforated very carefully with a fine needle and mounted in a light-tight box.
Films are used instead of glass plates, as the film is flexible.
This allows it to be placed behind the needle-hole in the form of a half-circle, all parts of the film equi-distant from the aperture. In this way the light is evenly distributed to all parts of the film, and as the ends of the film are almost at the side of the aperture, objects at the side of the camera are photographed as well as those directly in front of it. The films are held in place on pieces of thin metal of the right curvature. He expects soon to have an arrangement so that the films can be wound on spools after exposures are made.

A No. 10 needle was used for making the "lens." An exposure of 55 and 60 seconds was given.
In needle-hole photography there is no such thing as focus. Ex.
